

AT WORK OUR ABILITIES SHINE

People with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities can work. Let's support them to succeed!

Teddy Roosevelt once said: "Nothing worth doing is ever easy." Now more than ever, when Nebraskan employers are struggling to find workers, shouldn't the state's programs supporting people with disabilities be increasing their focus on encouraging and supporting Nebraskans with disabilities to discover their abilities and succeed in putting those abilities to work for themselves and for Nebraska? Today, state programs have Supported Employment services available but use of these services could be much higher among individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. Changes can be made to support this goal, which will result in more people with intellectual and developmental disabilities in the Nebraskan workforce, making a valuable contribution and reaping the many benefits of working. Will you be part of the change?

Nebraska needs more dedicated workers in its workforce.

Very few Nebraskans with intellectual & developmental disabilities are working.

Too many wrongly believe they cannot or should not work.

Nebraska can change these things.
